

Sheilah A. Doyle Foundation

Helping Victims of Violent Crimes create a Brighter Tomorrow

The Sheilah A. Doyle Foundation was started in September 2009 to award college scholarships to Chicagoland students who lost a parent to a violent crime.

In July 1993, Sheilah A. Doyle was brutally murdered by two men who followed her home from work with the intent to steal the hood of her car. She was a wife, a mother of three, and the core of the Doyle family. After having children, Sheilah decided to go back to school to better her life to save money to help her children go to college one day; it was always a dream of her's. Since she never had this opportunity, her family decided to start a foundation in the hopes of helping others in need.
